Free radicals are chemical entities that, character fiscally, have an unpaired electron in their make-up. They cause a problem because they can 'mug' a variety of molecules in cells with the general aim of stealing a precious electron to re-establish the normal pairing of their own electrons. If the mugging is successful, the victim molecule is left with a deficiency of electrons, which can lead of Knock-on problems such as structural disintegration. Although it requires very sophisticated analytical equipment to detect free radicals themselves, it is relatively easy to opt the chemical footprints they leave behind because they damage DNA in a characteristic way. Free radicals are generated from the water of cells and tissues when exposed to ionizing radiation. Even in the absence of such radiation it is now evident that similar, damaging free radicals are generated normally as we fight in actions and as we turn food into energy. Despite the fact that these processes

In Bengal, around the pilgrimage centre of the temple of kalighat, local village scroll painters and potters began developing a new style of art. They moved from the surrounding villages in to calculate in the early nineteenth century. This was a time when the city was expanding as a commercial and administrative centre Colonial offices were coming up, new buildings and roads were being built, markets were being established. The city appeared as a place of opportunity where people could come to make a new living. Village artists too came and settled in the city in the hope of new patrons and new buyers of their art.

Before the nineteen century, the village patuas and kumors had worked on my thological themes are produced images of gods and goddesses. On shifting to kalighat, they continue to paint these religious images. Traditionally the figures in scroll paintings looked flat not rounded. Now kalighat painters began to use shading to give them a rounder form, to make the images look three dimensional. Yet the images were not realistic and life like. In fact, what is specially to be noted in these early kalighat paintings is the use of a bold, deliberately non-realistic style, where the figures emerge large and powerful, with a minimum of lines, detail and colours.
